Course Description:

What happens when we die? Though there are no definitive answers to this question, we will examine the beliefs about death and the afterlife from a variety of religious and cultural perspectives. By reading studies about near death experiences, we will critically assess the types of evidence and theories about the afterlife. By exploring the world's religions, we will reach a deeper understanding of views about death and how those views shape our views about life. By learning about funerary practices around the world, we will theorize about the psychological and social functions of mourning practices and think deeply about the relationship between belief and practice. Finally, we will turn to some challenging ethical issues about life and death decisions and discuss them in the context of the views of world religions, philosophical positions, and our own experiences.

Course Goals and Objectives:

As a core course in the humanities that counts for international credit, this course supports the mission of Baldwin-Wallace College as well as the overall goals of the college core. Baldwin-Wallace College is committed to a "rigorous academic program that is characterized by excellence in teaching and learning within a challenging, supportive environment that enhances students' intellectual and spiritual growth." To this end, this course has the following objectives:

- 1) Increase the breadth of student knowledge by providing basic familiarity with the major religions of the world.
- 2) Encourage students toward personal, intellectual, and spiritual growth by considering positions about death in relation to their own views.
- 3) Challenge students to read anthropological sources and think deeply about the relationship between belief and practice.
- 4) Develop oral presentation skills, research skills, teamwork skills, and ethical sensitivity by doing a group presentation on a life-and-death issue.
- 5) Establish critical thinking and writing skills by composing essays that analyze ideas and practices regarding life after death.
- 6) _____
- 7) _____

Baldwin-Wallace College also “assists students in their preparation to become contributing, compassionate members of an increasingly global society.” To that end, the course has the following objectives:

- 1) Learn to appreciate the international aspects of cultural diversity.
- 2) Consider deeply some of the challenging ethical issues that face us today.
- 3) _____

How You Can Help Achieve These Goals:

- 1) Come to class
- 2) Come to class prepared (do all the reading!)
- 3) Come to class ready to participate, preferably with questions
- 4) Participate thoughtfully
- 5) Come to office hours
- 6) Write rough drafts
- 7) Ask questions (about the material, about the assignments, about anything!)
- 8) Turn in assignments on time
- 9) Read the newspaper

How I Will Help You Achieve These Goals:

- 1) I will come to class prepared.
- 2) I will assign manageable but challenging readings.
- 3) I will explain the material using diverse methods.
- 4) I will be available to answer questions or help you find answers.
- 5) I will look over drafts.
- 6) I will return graded assignments promptly with thorough explanations of grades.
- 7) I will stimulate your curiosity by displaying my own passion for the material.
- 8) I will stay current on the issues by reading the newspaper.
